VOLUME XXVI JULY, 1952 NO. 4

WHEN I wrote the last President's Page I had no thought that the next one would be composed in Villa No. 3 of the Gardens Hotel which was formerly the palatial residence of the Finance Minister with a separate Villa for each of his three wives. We do have air-conditioning but there are many differences between accommodations here and at the Middlebury Inn. These differences increase our pleasant anticipation of our return to Vermont.

Of course no one would leave Middlebury to spend a year in the Middle East if he wished to preserve his American standards of living. In comparison with most countries of the world Saudi Arabia has been visited by relatively few Americans. It is not a country which encourages tourists nor would most tourists loiter here, if admitted. Although we are on the Red Sea there are no bathing beaches guaranteed to be free of sharks or barracuda. There are no movies, restaurants or cafes. Furthermore there are no highways except to Mecca and only Moslems can go to that sacred city.

The Arabs with whom I have come in contact officially are gracious, intelligent and cultured. I have been presented to His Majesty the King, the Crown Prince and other members of the Royal family. It was astonishing to me to perceive how well informed they are on world affairs. I have been pressed with many questions regarding our forthcoming election. The Arabs are particularly concerned with our foreign policy and it is sometimes difficult to explain how our Government can have friendly relationships both with Israel and the Moslem countries.

His Majesty King Abdel Aziz ibn-Saud impressed me as a man who would be a great leader in any nation in any period of history. At Riyadh the capital, Ambassador Hare and I were over-night guests at the King's palace and we wore the usual Arabian costume during our stay. Shortly after I was conducted to my room a servant came to measure me for the mashlah, a loose flowing gown and later returned to help don it and arrange the headdress properly. There is not space to describe adequately the dinner with the Crown Prince on the Terrace of the Palace nor the ceremonies and rituals all so foreign to a visitor from the West. For example after the banquet the servants passed basins of perfumed water and we dried our hands over a brazier of incense.

We have just returned from a very interesting two weeks trip spent at and around Dhahran, the ultra-modern headquarters of the Arabian American Oil Company on the Persian Gulf. We had while there an opportunity to visit three training schools conducted by the company for their young Saudi Arabian employees. It was inspiring to see the eagerness and intelligence of these boys as they went to the blackboards to work out problems in arithmetic, spelling and English grammar. There were other classes in vocational training for young men with opportunities to go on to college if they do well. The Director of this educational program is Mr. Harry Snyder, father of Carlene Snyder who is a Freshman at Middlebury this year. One evening at the Snyder's home we had the pleasure of meeting our first member of the Class of 1956, Phil Braun who was at home on vacation from school in Beirut. On our way to Jidda we stopped for consultation at Beirut and there we were glad to see again Jane Ringland, Class of 1946, whose home is at Proctor, Vermont. She is a secretary with Trans-Arabian Pipeline Company. Also we had a pleasant luncheon another day with Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Osborne, whose daughter Barbara graduates this June from Middlebury.

Unofficially we have visited a few old Arab cities, Al-Kobhar, Dammam and Hoffuf which is particularly interesting as it still is surrounded by an ancient wall and is the center of a beautiful oasis and a population of 100,000. Outside the walls are extensive date plantations and alfalfa and various vegetables are cultivated in the forty eight little villages surrounding the city. We were there on market day and the four in our party were the only non-Arabs in the teeming suq and of course my wife was the only unveiled woman. Altho the language barrier made it impossible to talk with people on the streets they were friendly and courteous. It is my impression that the hostility evidenced towards Europeans in Iran and Egypt has not spread to Saudi Arabia. This is only one of many reasons why I have hopes that our Point Four program can achieve a measure of [Continued on page 12]

Middlebury In The News

Reserve Officers Training Unit Established at Middlebury College

A Reserve Officers Training Unit will be established at the College next fall. The Middlebury ROTC unit will be a general program of training affiliated with no particular branch of the Army.

Training in the program will be compulsory for all Freshmen entering College in September and optional for next year's Sophomores. The program will not be compulsory for any student who has completed the first two years of basic training.

The program will consist of two years of a basic course and two years of an advanced course. The advanced course will be optional for those who have finished the basic course.

The basic course will consist of one hour of class and two hours of drill per week. One academic credit per semester will be given for the basic course.

The advanced course will consist of three hours of class and two hours of drill per week. Three credits per semester will be granted for the advanced course. Students in this course will attend a summer camp between their junior and senior years.

If a student elects to enter the advanced course he must agree to accept a commission if it is offered to him at the end of the fourth year. Upon graduation a student will receive a Bachelor of Arts degree and a commission as a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve. He is then obligated to serve two years on active duty and an additional six years in the reserve.

Three officers and five enlisted men, headed by a Lieutenant Colonel, will make up the Middlebury ROTC staff. The officers, who will teach all the military courses, will have faculty rank. Headquarters will be in the Memorial Field House.

Military training on the Middlebury campus goes back to World War I in 1918 Congress authorized a Student's Army Training Corps, and 300 enrolled in the Middlebury unit.

During World War II a Navy V-12 training program was established at Middlebury, largely through the efforts of President Samuel S. Stratton. Over 1200 men were trained in cycles during that period.

A vast improvement in physical facilities has taken place on campus since the last war in the form of the huge World War II Memorial Field House and Gymnasium, completed in 1949 and honoring the 1851 Middlebury Alumni who served their country during that war.

While in Saudi Arabia recently, Oliver Darge, father of Thomas F. Darge, '50, took the picture above of President and Mrs. Samuel S. Stratton. The dress of servants in that country is illustrated by the clothes worn by the servant (standing).

Rabbits Make Possible Gift to Alumni Fund

Thirty-five rabbits gave their skins, and one rabbit gave its lucky feet and tail, for the successful 1952 Alumni Fund.

A member of the Class of 1916 now living in Hanover, N. H., mailed a package to the College containing four rabbit's feet, each with a check for the Fund wrapped around it, the four checks totaling $14.67. An accompanying letter had a rabbit's tail attached to it. Feet and tail he sent as luck tokens for the College.

Two checks, for $5.06 and $3.06, were from the sale of 35 rabbit skins, the Alumnus explained. The sale of one whole rabbit had netted the graduate $4.35, the sum of the third check to the college. The fourth check represented the price of a rose bush he had ordered—but the variety of bush was out of stock, and thus Middlebury benefited by an additional $2.20.

Enclosed in the package were the skin purchase records of a New York buyer, plus a picture of the rabbit whose sale had netted $4.35. One check was dated nearly a year ago. In a footnote to one purchase record the contributor lamented the fact that rabbit skins were so cheap.

Following is a copy of the letter which accompanied the unusual gift to the Alumni Fund:

"Dear Old Alma (mater)

Hi Alma—thoughts from me to you. Years ago as a youngster what dreams and aspirations a fellow had—one dream to have a big executive position with a white collar and silk tie and a desk job at which I would wear out a suit on the seat and elbows. But I was born to blue denim instead of royal purple. Had such rosy dreams of some time coming back to the old campus with a huge Kohinoor diamond or a mighty tusk of ivory from Darkest Africa.

"But some time ago one of the college bulletins told of how one of your boys came in with his basket of hens' eggs to help out. That encourages me—lacking diamonds or golden nuggets, or works of art—to send the tail of this rabbit who kicked in for the Alumni Fund kitty his all—tail, four feet, and himself. No. 1 foot and No. 2 are kicking in with his hide and 34 of his brothers. Foot No. 3 kicks your way one of his fine brothers, and rabbit foot No. 4 carries a refund check on a Mrs. Minerva rose bush that rose company was all sold out of. And so, Alma, concludes my simple little tale of a nice white rabbit."

Mrs. Harriett Miner Carter, '26, has been awarded the first full tuition scholarship, given by L'Amicale de Middlebury, for study at the College French Summer School, June 27 to August 14. Mrs. Carter makes her home at 510 East Main Street, Palmyra, N. Y. L'Amicale de Middlebury is an association of friends, students and faculty members of the French Summer School.

Reynolds, an Instructor of Contemporary Civilization since 1949, will join the History Department as an Instructor. He will also become advisor to the student weekly newspaper.

Dr. C. Leonard Hoag, an Associate Professor, will return to the Contemporary Civilization Department. He has been on leave since February of 1951 as a statistician with the State Department.

John H. Kreinheder, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds at the College since 1945, will serve as a Lecturer in Engineering Drawing next year. Mr. Kreinheder is a registered architect and a professional engineer. He was graduated from Valparaiso University.

Barbara Blair Promotes Alumni Fund with Poem

The 1952 Alumni Fund Drive was a great success. The goal of $20,000 was reached in late May. The reason for the success of the Drive is due, in part, to the work done by certain Class Fund Chairmen. The following poem entitled "It's High Time We Had A Middlebury Man In The White House," is an example of what Barbara A. Blair, '45, used to remind the members of her class to contribute to the Alumni Fund.

(A political tract, with some economic sidelights)

Some like Ike, and some like Taft
(To differ thus is human)
Some think Estes is the bestes
And some like Harry Truman

But, has this thought occurred to you?
(It's most extraordinary!)
Not one of these good men and true
Attended MIDDLEBURY.

It's obvious, and plain to see
They would have if they could have
And if they're for the White House bound,
We'll all agree they should have

And yet they didn't—it's a fact
That bears investigation
The LESSER institutions gave
These guys their education!

Historians will sadly note
As they relate who ran
That in the lot there just was not
A MIDDLEBURY man.

Why should this be? I thought it out,
I sighed, and I deplored it
And then the thought occurred to me:
They just could not AFFORD it!

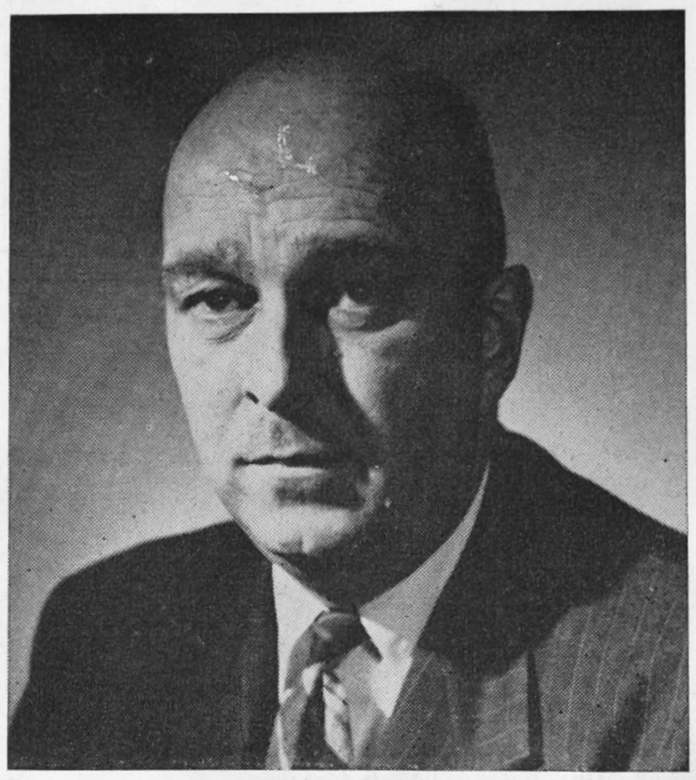
It's too late now to try and change
The face of '52,
But when it comes to future years,
There's something we can do!

Let's subsidize the top-notch guys
And gals—Here's all you do:
Just give to the ALUMNI FUND—
Your dollars put 'em through.

And then in 30 years or so,
We'll find out what is meant
By that much-talked-of, seldom-seen
Thing called "Good Government!"

Fred Brooks, '53, of Verona, N. J. has been elected captain of the 1952–53 Middlebury varsity basketball team. He is six-foot two inches tall and weighs 175 pounds.

Irwin K. French to Leave Middlebury; Carroll Rikert New Business Manager



Irwin K. French

Carroll Rikert

Irwin K. French, Business Manager of the College since 1944, has resigned to accept a position as Business Manager of Wellesley College. He took over his new duties on July 1. Wellesley is a college for women with 1600 students and an endowment of seventeen million dollars. It is located in Wellesley, Massachusetts.

Carroll Rikert, Jr., has been appointed to replace Mr. French as Business Manager. Mr. Rikert was Controller at Brown University, Providence, R. I., before taking over the duties of Business Manager at Middlebury in July.

In his letter of resignation to Egbert C. Hadley, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the College, Mr. French said: "During the past eight years I consider myself fortunate to have had an opportunity to work with President Stratton and the Board and to share at least a little in the growth and development of Middlebury College."

Mr. French came to Middlebury after holding several positions in the business management and accounting fields. He once held the position of Business Manager of the Babson Institute of Business Administration in Wellesley Hills, Massachusetts.

He is a director and Secretary-Treasurer of the National Federation of College and University Business Officers Association, and Secretary-Treasurer of the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers. Mr. French is a Director of the Rutland Railway and during 1949 and 1950 he was a reorganization manager of this railroad.

Mr. Rikert is a graduate of Harvard College. In 1940 he took an advanced degree from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He became a certified public accountant in New York State in 1945. From 1940 to 1946 he was an accountant with the firm of Haskins & Sells in New York City and Newark, N. J. His service with this firm was interrupted by a period of service as an ensign in the U. S. Navy. In 1946 he became controller of accounts at Brown University and in 1951 was named controller.

Mr. Rikert is a native of Greenfield, Mass., and he and his wife are the parents of four children.

College Names Four New Department, Division Chairmen

Four new Department and Division Chairman have been appointed by the College.

J. Perley Davison, Associate Professor of History, is the new Chairman of the History Department, succeeding Professor Allen M. Cline who has retired.

Professor Cline also served as Chairman of the Social Sciences Division, and he was succeeded in this position by Professor J. Stuart Prentice, head of the Economics Department.

Professor Bruno M. Schmidt replaced Professor Phelps N. Swett as Chairman of the Geology, Geography, and Drafting Department. Professor Swett prior to his retirement on July 1st, was a member of the Middlebury faculty for 43 years.

John A. Valentine Jr., Assistant Professor of Psychology, has been named Acting Chairman of the Psychology and Education Department. Professor Frank E. Howard was the head of this department before his recent retirement.

Unusual Record . . .

A four-year job as chimer at Middlebury College ended for the son of Russell Hemphill, '16, when he played the bells for the last time preceding the Baccalaureate Service on June 15th.

David L. Hemphill, '52, became chimer in his freshman year, and since 1948 has played the bells daily from 5:30 to 6:00 P.M. whenever the College has been in session. Dave estimates that he has played the bells on over 850 occasions.

The ninety million dollar Hetty Green Wilks estate which has aided 63 institutions and organizations has presented the College with a check for $1,645,391.82, approximately two-thirds of the sum due Middlebury under the terms of the will. The receipt of the Wilks money makes available additional income to put into the general budget of the College, which in turn makes possible a considerable increase in the salaries of faculty and staff. The postwar inflationary trend has lessened the purchasing power of the income from Middlebury's endowment and until the receipt of the Wilks money, the College has been unable to do as much as it desires in bringing Middlebury salaries to the level of sister liberal arts colleges of a similar size and character.

Dr. Stephen A. Freeman, Vice President of the College (left), receives the check from George H. V. Allen, Middlebury Treasurer. Looking on with approval are Egbert C. Hadley, '10, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Robert D. Hope, '11, Assistant Treasurer.

Betsy Strong, '53, and Jean-Marie McKenna, '54, are the co-captains of the women's ski team for 1952–53. . . .

Henry B. Prickitt has been promoted from Instructor to Assistant Professor of English. He is Treasurer of Undergraduate Activities. . . . The College has announced that its expanding Fine Arts Department will add to its curriculum next year a course dealing with the history and theory of Eastern Art. This course will encompass the development of architecture, painting, and sculpture of Eastern Art, comprising Hindu, Mohammaden, Persian, Chinese, and Japanese art.

A Middlebury College student received word from Tokyo that a college yearbook he discarded in Korean combat a year ago has turned up in the Army's lost and found department.

In March of last year Morton S. Stone of New York City was a corporal in the 99th Field Artillery Battalion with the 1st Cavalry Division. While he was on pre-dawn guard duty, his unit was ordered to withdraw before a coming Red offensive. Hurriedly emptying his dufflebag of unessential articles, Stone tossed aside his copy of the Sesquicentennial Kaleidoscope which he had carried for several months. The battalion abandoned its position to the enemy.

Notice of the found Kaleidoscope came today from the Army's Japan Logistical Command which requested 28 cents from Stone for shipping charges. He hopes to recover his book.

A 22-year old sophomore, Stone was the first reservist called to active duties from Middlebury's student body, and today he is the only veteran of the Korean War on campus. He entered college in 1949 after serving in the Army, and he completed his freshman year. At the beginning of his sophomore year the Army recalled him to duty and sent him to Korea where he served eleven months. Discharged last October, he re-entered Middlebury for the spring semester.

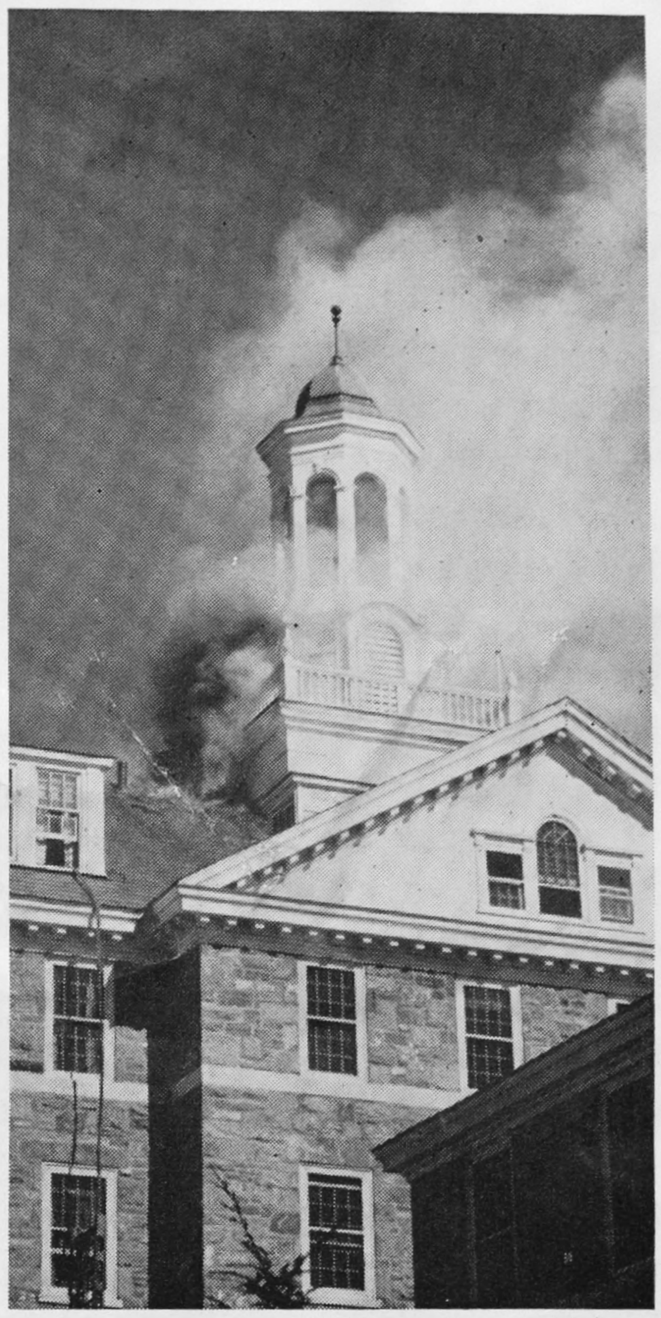
Kevin B. O'Connor, '53 and Barbara L. Whitney, '53, have been awarded the 1952–53 Charles Baker Wright Scholarships. The scholarships were established in 1949 in memory of Charles Baker Wright, former Middlebury Dean and Professor of English. Income from $50,000 provides two full tuition scholarships annually for a man and a woman in the senior class.

Dr. James A. Maxwell, Chairman of the Department of Economics and Sociology at Clark University, delivered the Second Annual Fife Memorial Lecture at Mead Memorial Chapel on April 19. The lecture was in honor of Harry M. Fife, Professor of Economics at Middlebury from 1926 until his death in January of 1950.

Beginning next fall the number of late permissions for Middlebury women will be increased. The members of next year's Freshman Class will have the usual three ten-thirty permissions a semester; sophomores, five ten-thirty permissions; juniors, five eleven o'clocks; and seniors will continue to have eleven o'clock permissions every Friday night with four additional eleven o'clock permissions. This amendment to the Women's Constitution, affecting the Sophomores and Juniors who now have the same late permissions as Freshmen, was suggested by Jean Overhysser, '53, and Alberta Kreh, '53, President and Chief Justice of the Women's Undergraduate Association.

Captains elect for next year's baseball, golf, track and lacrosse teams are: Peter Marshall, '53 (baseball); Richard Davenport, '54 (golf); Don Faber, '53, and George West, '53 (co-captains, track); and, James Bartlett, '53, and Bob Kelly, '53, (co-captains, lacrosse).

Fire Damages Gifford Hall



Fire starting in an elevator shaft and spreading to a wooden attic in late April caused damage estimated at $30,000 to Gifford Hall, a men's dormitory and with the exception of the attic, a fire proof building.

Gifford Hall was fully insured and the College will be recompensed for the damage.

The fire originated in some trash temporarily left by the janitor in an elevator of the "dumb waiter" type when he was called to another part of the campus to receive supplies. The fire first burned the elevator and some ropes holding it in place thus causing the counter weights to pull the burning elevator to the top of the shaft and starting the fire in the attic.

Three students were overcome by smoke but recovered speedily.

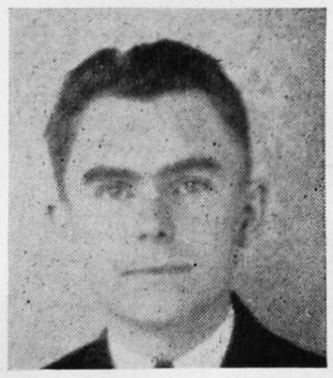
No burning took place inside the main part of the building, although there was considerable water and smoke damage on the upper floors.

Middlebury College won the Vermont State Collegiate Baseball championship for the seventh consecutive year this spring. The Panthers on May 31st defeated the University of Vermont by a score of 5 to 3.

American Studies Program

By Dr. Lyle Glazier, '33

A new program in American Studies, enabling students to cut across departmental lines and obtain a broad background in American culture and civilization, has been established at the University of Buffalo.



The University of Buffalo is so different from Middlebury that a description of its new American Studies program should perhaps be prefaced by a brief account of the university itself. We are a large city university of nearly eleven thousand students. The founders looked upon the university as a social as well as a cultural instrument, and it has always been the university's policy to match its curriculum to the needs of the community, and to turn away no qualified student from the Niagara Frontier.

Buffalo itself is a city of over 500,000, and the thickly settled suburban areas swell it to nearly twice that size. Having a share in the power from Niagara Falls, it is an industrial city with a cosmopolitan population representing many cultural backgrounds. There are nearly 40,000 Negroes, the present mayor is a Pole and the Polish-language newspaper is the largest in the world, and, besides the Anglo-Saxons, there are large numbers of Germans, Greeks, French, Italians, Irish, and Jews. Some areas of the city have the flavor of a distinctive national culture, but the typical area is polyglot, and the process of cultural assimilation is everywhere active, nowhere more so than at the university, which draws its life from the entire community.

In the College of Arts and Sciences the liberal arts tradition is strong. For many years a comprehensive examination has been a requirement for graduation. The core of the liberal arts tradition has been the tutorial program, a unique feature of the university, through which during the junior and senior years every student under guidance has planned an individual reading course in his major field. It is regrettable that the present belt-tightening, prevalent everywhere among American colleges, has changed the program into a series of group rather than individual consultations.

The College of Arts and Sciences, in which the American Studies program will function, has long offered important concentrations in American civilization, especially in the departments of History and Government. The new program brings together all the American civilization offerings so that they can supplement each other. The program's chief aim is the intellectual discovery of America. Its social aim is to prepare students for citizenship, to develop citizens who can correct the faults and foster the merits of their society, and who will be well enough informed to be able to explain to citizens of other countries the virtues of a democratic society. Its vocational aim is to offer preparation for such activities as public school teaching, creative writing, non-specialized business careers, and graduate study in American civilization.

We do not delude ourselves into believing that the objectives can be attained by studying American civilization in vacuo. Besides giving the student a thorough acquaintance with the essential features of American civilization, the program aims at the same time to keep him reminded constantly that Americans cannot understand themselves without understanding their relations to the larger world from which their institutions are derived and in which today their government is playing such a vital part. To supplement his concentration in American civilization, therefore, each student will be advised to build as wide as possible a base, in the study of other cultures, especially the cultures of Western Europe, from which his study of American civilization will take on perspective.

To forestall the danger that the program might become the instrument for a director with an evangelical gospel, either radical or reactionary, the program is developed around already established departments; there is no new department of American Studies. The staff will be made up of teachers with loyalties to international traditions. A safeguard against cultural isolationism is the fact that most departments have requirements for related courses in European culture, which must be taken before the student [Continued on page 13]

Dr. Glazier is the author of the new program in American Studies at the University of Buffalo. He is married to the former Miss Amy L. Niles, '33, and resides at 33 Potter Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. and Mrs. Glazie have three daughters, aged 11, 8 and 4. He received his A.M. degree from the Middlebury Bread Loaf School of English and his doctorate from Harvard. Prior to joining the faculty of the University of Buffalo, Dr. Glazier taught at Bates, Tufts and Harvard. He is Assistant Professor of English and Chairman of American Studies at Buffalo.

Music at Middlebury College

By H. Ward Bedford, Associate Professor of Music

Music instruction at Middlebury College has followed the premise that a small independent college should present its subject matter for the general student and leave technical and professional training to the professional schools. However, the means of achieving this objective have varied considerably for good reasons. The Middlebury Catalogues of the early 1920's list as many as five teachers in the Music Department. At the same time only four or five class courses were offered. Professor Lewis Hathaway informs me that the major effort of the staff was devoted to private lessons. The current Catalogue lists three instructors and a greatly expanded course offering. Conversely, relatively little time is given over to private teaching. If we look around at what has happened generally in the American scene it will help to explain what is happening here at Middlebury.

Music, the visual arts, and "great books" have attained an academic respectability during the contemporary wave of interest in "general education" and "core" curricula. This admission of music to the polite society of college halls is such a recent phenomenon that many are hardly aware of the radical nature of the revolution. Imagine the steps which the teaching of the art has taken when technical institutions like Massachusetts Institute of Technology offer a course in music. Conversely, think what changes have been wrought when Juilliard offers one general college course per year including physical science. Are we really getting around to the point of view that education is aimed to develop the "whole man"? Let us hope so.

Music instruction in colleges and universities is a relative newcomer. It is only a little more than a hundred years ago that European Universities began to consider music studies as appropriate for mental discipline. American counterparts have been much slower in following their lead. Princeton, for example, has established a music department only within the past fifteen years.

As would be expected, much pioneering work had to be done before music could find its proper place in the American college. The American scene was so patently different from Europe. There was not the general knowledge of the subject, not the tradition of instrumental playing at the amateur level, no significant heritage of tradition of composition as was found in Europe. Music literacy was low. Therefore, instruction had to be adapted to the American scene. Some institutions felt that the first steps would have to be toward the teaching of the ABC's and therefore offered instruction in piano, violin, voice, etc. The introductory course in music literature and history was in the form of "appreciation" with the strengths and weaknesses implied by the term. Some universities were fortunate enough to find a man who could raise these introductory courses to a high level and they became the prototype for others to follow. A case in point would be Professor Davidson of Harvard.

Not only was there a need for exploratory work in the presentation, but there was a great need for a literature about music which the American college student could use. Up until the past decade or so, there was a poverty of writings which were both scholarly and in English. Since European scholars were doing the most of the important research in

THE AUTHOR has been a member of the Middlebury faculty since 1936. Following the retirement of Professor Lewis J. Hathway in 1941 as head of the Middlebury Music Dept., Professor Bedford was named chairman of this department. A son of a college president, he is a graduate of Earlham College and Westminster Choir School. Before coming to Middlebury he taught Voice and Choral Music at Penn College in Iowa and was Director of Music at the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh. Professor Bedford holds a Master of Arts Degree from the University of Pittsburgh. He has recently done graduate work at Columbia University.

musicology, it is natural that they would write in their own languages. To a great degree this language barrier was too great an obstacle for undergraduates to overcome.

The past fifteen years have seen a vast change in the solving of the problem. There are currently available many books in English by eminent scholars. It is no longer required that the undergraduate get his introduction in the field of music via German, French, Italian, and Latin. Many important works have appeared in translation and many new publications have been issued in English. To mention a few, Music In The Middle Ages by Gustav Reese, Music In The Baroque Era by Manfred Bukhofzer, Music In Western Civilization by Paul Henry Lang, The Italian Madrigal by Alfred Einstein. The fact is that the United States have benefited tremendously by the exodus of scholars from totalitarian regimes which were unsympathetic to independent thinking. It is safe to say that the greatest minds in music are now in American colleges and universities.

Lincoln M. Furber, '53, is shown signing out records for after class study. Looking on is Miss Nancy F. Cawley, Secretary of the Music Department.

Not only has the literature of music history been made available to college students, but vast quantities of actual musical scores have been reprinted or collected. To illustrate, Middlebury has the use of the complete works of Bach through the generous loan of Mr. William Scheide. We also own the complete works of Beethoven. We have hundreds of full-sized and miniature scores of individual works. We have several collected works of transcribed scores which make available to our students actual musical examples of medieval or oriental music. Such material was available only to one who could afford the Carnegie Corp. grant was received. The grant consisted of books, scores, and about 1,000 records. Today, our library has approximately 10,000. The advent of long playing records since World War II has added a vast literature. Works which ten years ago remained only listings in some encyclopedia are now to be found in both score and recording in our library.

The inclusion of music in respectable academic society, and the availability of materials now demand an examination of our objectives in the teaching of music to college students. Professor Roy Dickingson Welch has been one of the pioneers of high standards in college teaching. Until his recent death, he was head of the department at Princeton. His statement of what a department should aim at was reported in the Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors in the summer of 1950. I am proud to point out that we were doing practically what he recommended before his article appeared.

1. We offer an introductory course which we call "Survey" in materials, forms, literature, and history. The course is open to all students and cur- [Continued on page 12]

European study when this writer was an undergraduate.

Another important aid to music education is the wonderfully complete phonograph record listings. The phonograph record is one of the great mechanical achievements of this era. It seems that practically any piece of music which has ever been written is somewhere recorded. Again, let me point to our own record library. The department had a few records before 1937 when success in this country.

Since I have been here we have been able to initiate several projects, among others, in the fields of education, public health and agriculture. Within the last few days the Saudi Arabian Government has announced the establishment of a Monetary Agency and a Budget for 1953 based on the principle that expenditures must be related to government income. This achievement can, I think, be attributed to the technical advice and influence of the T.C.A. staff which has been working on these problems for many months. It is my conviction that this oil rich Middle Eastern country, bridge between Eastern Europe and the Far East is of utmost importance in the foreign policy of the United States. At present I believe that the technical assistance that is being offered by the Point Four program is the greatest contribution our country can make toward preserving the friendship of Saudi Arabia and promoting the stable and sound economy so essential for combating communism.

Through the medium of the Campus and many air-mail letters we feel closely in touch with Middlebury. I am particularly pleased to learn that our plans and efforts of more than a year have resulted in a Reserve Officers Training Corps for the College and that already $1,645,391.82 has been received from the estate of Hetty Green Wilks. We are thankful to Ted Lang for the suggestion which prompted me to call upon the administrator of the Wilks estate in New York in July of 1947.

Mrs. Stratton and I shall miss the pleasant round of June festivities and the opportunity which every commencement week end gives for the renewing friendships with Alumni. We look forward already to June 1953.

rently the enrollment embraces about 10% of the entire student body. Since the size of the enrollment has remained approximately the same for several years, about 40% of the students in the college have taken this course. The course is designed so as to make familiarity with music the basic premise. A considerable number of works must be learned well enough to be able to identify spot passages. The list of required works begins with Bach and extends to the 20th century.

2. We offer courses in harmony and counterpoint from the point of view of teaching the language, vocabulary, and grammar of music; and insight into the actual construction of music. Here, the object is to teach technique, not that the student will become a professional composer, but rather that he will understand what someone else has composed. The aim is not music algebra, but music insight. Continuous reference is made to the way in which various composers at different periods have employed these techniques to create works of lasting value.

3. There are several advanced courses offered in the works of a particular tpye (Opera), or an outstanding individual (Bach, Beethoven), or a period (Modern).

4. All examinations are based on or derived from actual musical examples. As many critical, philosophical, and aesthetic considerations are introduced as is possible at the undergraduate level.

5. Opportunities to participate in the making of music are offered. Since the nature of the art is such as to require continuous recreation, the act of performing is strongly encouraged. We have a piano literature class in which students study the works and play them. We have a chamber music group which plays a large repertory for the pleasure and instruction they get from first-hand contact. Singers actually perform the choral works selected to illustrate that aspect of music literature. In the case of the choir, it is gratifying that after the Town Hall, New York, concert of March 1951, high commendation was received from the New York Herald Tribune, Musical America, and Choir Guide, for the quality of the performance as well as the music selected.

The one serious need at Middlebury is a building to house our fine record library and provide for adequate listening as well as classroom space and a rehearsal room. At present our large class must be held in Munroe or Warner Science, much to the disturbance of other classes. Before examinations, students wait in line to get earphones and a turntable. Our present building was built when the total enrollment was no more than half our present size and when music class enrollment was a small fraction of today's. An interesting illustration of how ideas can change in the course of the years is offered by our present building. It was designed so that it could be used as a dormitory for music students and its present use as a classroom and a library was never considered. However, until such a time as funds are available to provide a better physical plant, we shall continue to make whatever adjustments are expedient.

is qualified to go on to American civilization. Furthermore, American civilization is itself the product of so many cultures that the student exploring America will be frequently led into wider fields. Finally, the student will take courses not in a single American Studies department but in several.

The core of the program, required of all students who elect American Studies, will be the course in American Philosophy, the Survey of American Literature, and two courses in history—New Points of View in American History, and American Social and Intellectual History.

Aside from this core, there are two main directions in which the student can travel. He can choose an interdepartmental major distributed over several American Studies departments (i.e., departments in which there are a number of courses devoted to a study of some aspect of American life), or he can choose a major in a single department supplemented by a distribution of related courses in other departments.

For the interdepartmental Major in American Studies, the student during the first two years will prepare to enter the tutorial program in some American Studies department. His intensive work in American Studies will begin in the junior year. During that year he will take tutorial work in an American Studies department and several related courses in other departments. During the senior year, besides taking further courses, he will be enrolled in a tutorial seminar where students drawn from several departments will share with each other their experience as brought to bear, in written papers and discussions, on a group of general topics dealing with controversial aspects of American life.

For the student desiring to keep the principle of a departmental major, the program provides for such a major, somewhat modified in the number of hours required for graduation, in an American Studies department, supplemented by at least 27 semester hours of credits distributed over at least three other American Studies departments. It will be possible to major in Drama and Speech, Economics, English, History, Geology, Geography, Government, Philosophy, Psychology, or Sociology and Anthropology. The chief innovation here is the requirement for interdepartmental synthesis as a means of broadening the base of scholarship.

A further innovation of the program is that for the first time a student will be able to major in American literature, under the department of English. To make this major possible, there will be several new courses, each in the nature of an interdisciplinary course which interprets literature as a cultural document as well as a fine art. Literature of American Democracy will be a study of the masterpieces, European and American, which shaped the American mind during the Revolution, followed by some consideration of the controversial attitudes toward Democracy recorded in literature from the Revolution to the present. The Immigrant in American Literature considers the great contribution of non-Anglo-Saxons to American culture, and explores the nature of contemporary America as an amalgam of national cultures, whose full power can be realized only when the contribution of each culture is fostered and encouraged. Other new American literature courses to be given either next year or in 1953–4 are The Significance of the Frontier in American Literature; Puritanism: Heyday, Decadence and Decline; and American Borrowings from English Literature. Each of these courses will deal with both classic and contemporary American authors, and, while attempting to establish criteria for judging literary excellence, will not hesitate to make use of the great body of American writings which form a rich but sometimes semi-literate record of our cultural past.

Outside of the English department there are a number of interdisciplinary courses which will be important elements in the program. Central will be American Social and Intellectual History, a full year integrating course required of all seniors. Sociology courses such as The Sociology of the Arts and The Psychology of Social Movements will also be drawn upon, as will be several courses in Geography and Geology, which not only supplement each other but lend new perspectives to courses in Economics, Government, and History.

The sciences, generally, will be included as electives, or it will be possible for a student to substitute a unit in one of the sciences for a unit in some other American Studies area. Perhaps the greatest lack in the whole program is the lack of a broad course in the history of the sciences, which would present the contributions of American scientists in cultural and philosophical terms—such a series of lectures as Thomas Huxley might have created to make scientific discoveries known to the nonspecialist.

As the NEWS LETTER is going to press, the College announced the appointment of two army officers as Professors of Military Science and Tactics to direct the new R. O. T. C. unit which begins operation at Middlebury in September. Lieut. Col. Stuart C. Williams will be Professor of Military Science and Tactics and commanding officer of the unit. Capt. Reinhold W. Herman, now at the University of Massachusetts will be Assistant Professor.

Regional Dinner Notes

After an interval of several years, the alumni in the Detroit area again organized a dinner meeting this spring bringing the total number of regional alumni meetings to twenty. Talks by College faculty and staff members were supplemented by College movies and a new collection of Kodachrome slides of Campus scenes. The slides are now available for alumni meetings and may be obtained on loan from the Alumni Office.

Some of the groups tried out a new idea for this year of inviting alumni unable to attend the dinner, to come in afterward for dessert and coffee. This gave them a chance to enjoy the fellowship of their Middlebury friends as well as to hear the speaker. An increase in attendance showed that this plan was well received.

1952 Commencement

Perfect weather prevailed on Reunion Saturday, Baccalaureate Sunday, and Commencement Monday, June 14, 15, and 16. Middlebury seniors were graduated with sunny skies, optimistic hearts, and all due ceremony and excitement.

Remaining true to her tradition, Middlebury welcomed 1500 guests to the campus—Alumni, friends and parents of seniors.

The usual crowded program, coupled with friendship renewals by Alumni and promises to write by seniors, kept most campus visitors in a "whirl" of activity. Those seniors who decided to make the week end double as their wedding week end managed to maintain almost as much poise as other seniors. The week end was a BUSY one for everyone.

At Class Day events on Saturday morning, Vice President Stephen A. Freeman announced prize awards. The Woolsey Prize for the best written examination on the Bible was shared by Julie N. Howard, '54, and Nancy L. Hamilton, '53. George F. Wedge, Jr., '52, won the Reid Carr Prize for proficiency in English Literature. Donald B. Elwell, '52, was announced as winner of the Bishop Atwood Prize for History.

Alumni, seniors, and parents thronged into Memorial Field House at noon on Saturday to dine on chicken at the Reunion Barbecue.

Dr. Leonard W. Brockington delivering the address at the 150th commencement exercises of the College. One hundred and fifty years ago one degree was awarded at the first commencement in 1802.

Professor Emeritus Duane L. Robinson, '03, and George E. Shaw, '10, received Alumni awards of pewter plaques in recognition of their service to the College. Professor Robinson's citation read: "This is a happy occasion for the presenting of this token of the affection and esteem in which you are held by all Middlebury men and women. We know of your loyal affections for your college but we also know of many instances where you have helped young undergraduates, not only financially, but by your moral support in their moments of discouragement. If ever a son of Middlebury deserved this honor, you have indeed earned it a hundred fold."

Mr. Shaw's citation stated: "Born and bred in the Champlain Valley, graduate of Middlebury in 1910, member of Phi Beta Kappa, for forty years engaged as investment banker and consultant in New York City—yet in your modest and unassuming way ever ready to assist and counsel young graduates. Above all always a loyal son of Middlebury and generous contributor to her needs. Alumni of the college take pleasure in bestowing upon you this alumni award.

The election of Alan W. Furber, '20, of South Deerfield, N. H., as new Alumni trustee, and Gordon E. Wiley, '27, of Snyder, N. Y., as National Alumni President, was announced at the Reunion Barbecue. Elected National Alumnae President was Miss Dorothea E. Higgins, '30, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of the Commencement and Baccalaureate Addresses may be secured by sending your request to:
Editor, NEWS LETTER, Old Chapel, Middlebury, Vermont.

William H. Edmunds, '17, chairman of the Alumni Fund, announced that the 1952 Fund total was $21,242.83. This figure exceeded the Fund's goal by over a thousand dollars.

The men of three class groups had 100% contribution to the Alumni Fund and earned joint title to the LaFlamme Cup, established last year in memory of Lt. Armand N. La Flamme, '37, who died in World War II. Class chairmen who received this cup were Dr. Lucretius H. Ross of Bennington, for the combined 1882-1890 group; Dr. Hermon E. Haseltine for 1902; and Gordon D. MacQuivey for 1906.

Winner of the McCullough Reunion Cup for having the largest percentage of its living members present was the class of 1902. Miss Bertha Collins ascended to accept this cup for her winning class.

Alumni registration records showed that the graduates traveling the greatest distance to attend Alumni Day were Mrs. Alice Grossland Danolds, '21, of Riverside, California, Clinton S. Reynolds, '12, of Tacoma, Washington, and Gordon D. MacQuivey, '06, Wendell, Idaho.

Saturday night the following classes held reunions: 1902, 1907, 1912, 1917, 1922, 1927, 1932, 1937, 1942, and 1947. The College Players presented "Blithe Spirit" at the College Playhouse and a dance was held in the McCullough Gymnasium on the same evening.

Benjamin W. Fisher, '14, National Alumni President, presents the McCullough Reunion Cup to Miss Bertha Collins, '02. The Class of 1902 had the largest number present at the commencement reunions.

The Baccalaureate . . .

Sunday morning, seniors, parents, and alumni attended the Baccalaureate Service in Mead Chapel and heard a fine address entitled "Point of No Return" by the Reverend James C. McLeod, '26, Chaplain of Northwestern University.

At the Baccalaureate, Reverend McLeod told graduates that "one of the first things you must do is formally reject once and for all the mood of spectatoritis—that sinister temptation to sit in the grandstand while others carry the symbol of our hope toward some distant goal line. To sit on the sidelines and carp and complain about how will not correct the evils of our society," he said.

"Man has not always achieved the world he wanted, but he has usually gotten the kind of world he deserved. How much does your generation want that kind of world where there is peace—a world fit to live in, made up of people fit to live with?" he said.

Commencement itself was rightfully the climax of the week end. Dr. Leonard W. Brockington, Canadian lawyer and president of the J. Arthur Rank film and theatre organizations in Canada, in delivering the commencement address, urged the seniors to "take into the world beyond a sense of gratitude toward your teachers." In praising teachers, he said that it would be a "wonderful thing if you could summon before your eyes that devoted army of men and women of Middlebury, who, without many material rewards, have found their recompense in following the enduring faith of what is probably the greatest secular calling to which men and women can devote their lives."

"You are lucky in many things," Dr. Brockington told the graduates. "You are walking from this place into the cleansing winds and the healing sun of North America, with the laughter of friends ringing in your ears, with unbought graces as your dower, with the memory of devoted teachers as your companions on your pilgrimage, and with the heritage of ancient beauty to enrich the musings of your solitude."

Two hundred and thirty seniors were graduated. Graduating magna cum laude was Elizabeth D. Parker.

Cum laude graduates were: Philip G. Deane, Donald B. Elwell, Paul D. Faris, William H. Howard, Jr., Jack Sacher, George F. Wedge, Jr., Carol J. Annable, Sally Baldwin, Barbara A. Becker, Janet M. Bogart, Barbara A. Eckman, Nancy M. Harrison, Shirley M. Herrman, Jacqueline Willaredt Lelong (Mrs.), Sharon J. Locke, Elizabeth W. Loemker, Jacqueline Logan, Ann M. McMillen, Anne G. Nichols, Ruth A. Parry, Elizabeth A. Pierce, and Phebe Ann Prescott.

Dr. Brockington was one of seven persons to receive honorary degrees at the exercises. He was cited as:

"Native of important little land of Wales and sharing in its ancestral love of music, its gift of oratory, and its genius for practical affairs . . . we wish to honor not only you but the people of Wales and Canada whom you represent before us.''

Dr. Brockington was awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Major General Ernest N. Harmon, President of Norwich University, was awarded the Doctor of Laws degree and cited:

''You have already been honored far beyond Middlebury's power to add more glory. May we, therefore, honor you quite simply as president of our sister institution in Vermont . . . . in full assurance that the leadership, courage, and wisdom which have distinguished you on the battlefield have already made your administration there constructive and successful.''

Frederic F. Van de Water, awarded a Doctor of Humane Letters, was cited:

''Author, enthusiastic and public-spirited Vermonter . . . . you have enriched and made more meaningful the traditions of this state by your discerning research and by your talented pen.''

Eugene Exman was awarded the honorary Doctor of Religious Education with this citation:

''Through your development of the Moffatt Bible, through your friendship with the great religious thinkers of today . . . . and through the aid and encouragement which you have given them to put their thoughts into print . . . . you have become the recognized dean of religious publishing.''

James L. Madden, Acting Chancellor of New York University and Vice President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, was cited as:

''Vice president of one of our greatest insurance companies; you have practiced law before the U. S. Supreme Court; you have taught in a great law school; you are now guiding the activities of a great university. We express admiration for your talents and amazement that one man can serve so many.''

He received a doctor of Laws degree.

Alumni awards for distinguished service to the College were presented to George E. Shaw, '10, (left) and Duane L. Robinson, '03 (insert). Stanley V. Wright, '18, made the presentations.

Dean S. Edmonds was awarded a Doctor of Laws degree. His citation read:

''We pay tribute today to the ability and skill which you have demonstrated as a lawyer and as president or director of many business enterprises; we recognize your uprightness, integrity, and high standards in dealings with your fellow man.''

Dr. Helen Brooke Taussig of "blue baby operation" fame received a Doctor of Science degree and was cited as:

''A great benefactor of mankind, since it was your research which made possible the famous 'blue baby operation,' restoring life and health to thousands of tiny mortals.''

The Commencement Week End was not entirely a time of programs and reunions, however. The Alumni Council, Alumni Fund Committee, Alumnae Association, and the Board of Trustees held meetings during the week end.

Despite the uncertainty facing the seniors in the years ahead, Commencement, 1952, came to a close with about the same aura of excitement and hope fulfilled which has long been associated at Middlebury's commencement exercises. Four years of exacting work and good times at Middlebury have laid an excellent foundation for 230 world citizens.
